

Pruco Securities, LLC: A Summary of Our Business Continuity Plan

I. Introduction

While Pruco Securities, LLC (“Pruco”) strives to provide uninterrupted service to our customers, certain events outside of our control could impact our ability to conduct business. Such events could be weather-related or man-made, and could impact a wide geographic area or a single Pruco facility.

Pruco has a comprehensive Business Continuity Plan (BCP) in place to facilitate our ability to operate and serve our customers if such a business disruption were to occur. The following is an overview of our Business Continuity Plan and how we will respond to such situations.

II. Our Business

We will first briefly describe how we conduct our business so that you may have a better understanding of our Business Continuity Plan. Pruco, a subsidiary of Prudential Financial (“Prudential”), is a registered broker dealer and investment adviser, offering variable life insurance and variable annuity products, mutual funds, and securities brokerage accounts through its registered representatives. Pruco also distributes individual variable life insurance products for Prudential and its affiliates. Pruco has sales offices throughout the United States, with many of the operational facilities located in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Florida and Minnesota. Each Pruco office maintains its own business continuation plan that provides for alternative operating sites, back-up facilities and systems. For our brokerage accounts, Pruco clears customer trades on a fully disclosed basis through First Clearing, LLC.

III. Overview of Our Business Continuity Plan

Pruco, as part of Prudential, has access to extensive resources, both in terms of alternative physical locations from which to conduct business, as well as systems resources to provide disaster recovery planning. Because Pruco conducts its business activities from multiple locations, it has made arrangements to relocate associates to one of several backup locations in the event that a primary work location is unavailable.

In accordance with Prudential's enterprise-wide business continuation policies and standards, all critical business systems, including those used by Pruco, are fully tested on a periodic basis, at least once yearly.

Pruco will follow decisions made by the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority ("FINRA") and major stock exchanges concerning opening and closing of the markets during a disruptive event. Pruco will not conduct trading on days when U.S. securities markets are closed.

In the following sections (A) – (C), we describe how our Business Continuity Plan will be deployed in a variety of potential business disruption scenarios.

A. Disruption to One or More Pruco Offices

Impacted associates whose functions are deemed critical report to designated recovery sites, which are designed to be operational within 48 hours after a disruptive event. In some cases, impacted associates may work from home. Essential information systems and data are similarly restored and made available following our regularly tested, back-up and recovery procedures.

B. Disruption to a Business District or City

Certain designated backup sites may be located within the same business district or city as a primary work location. In the event one or more backup sites are unavailable, impacted associates would use an alternative site outside the business district or city. For example, associates from Pruco's main office in New Jersey may be directed to one of several other proprietary or third party locations in New Jersey or other states, depending on availability. In some cases, impacted associates may work from home. Our goal is to provide critical personnel an operational backup site within 48 hours.

C. Disruption to an Entire Region

As discussed above, multiple backup locations are typically available to Pruco associates in the event of a disruptive event. In the event no sites are available due to a large-scale disruption, it may be necessary for Pruco to temporarily suspend its operations until alternative arrangements can be made. Pruco will maintain communications with and assist our customers and business partners to the best of our ability under the circumstances. While we strive to restore our operations within 48 hours, our actual recovery time under this scenario will depend on the nature and extent of the business disruption.

IV. Market Closings

Pruco will not open for trading unless the U.S. equity markets are open. Both FINRA and the New York Stock Exchange have contingency plans in place to allow for trading in the event of a disruption to the markets, including the possibility of trading other market's products in the event one cannot open.

V. First Clearing, LLC

For our brokerage accounts, Pruco acts as the introducing broker and clears through a clearing firm, First Clearing, LLC ("FCC"). FCC also has contingency plans in place in the event of a business disruption. FCC can be reached at P.O. Box 6600, Glen Allen, VA 23058. For information, please refer to FCC's web site at <http://www.firstclearingllc.com>.
