Do You Have a Good Sense of YOUR RETIREMENT READINESS?

More than two in five Americans inaccurately assess their retirement preparedness—perhaps worrying too much, or not enough. How are you doing?

1 in 5 is unaware of shortcomings

Nearly one in five households incorrectly believe they will be secure in retirement. They face the biggest risk of being shocked by reality when they fall short.

2 in 5 are wrong about what they think

Nearly a quarter of American households are taking the right steps and correctly understand that their goals are within reach.

19% unaware of shortcomings

Nearly a quarter of American households are at risk of not having enough money in retirement, but only a third are also aware they have work to do.

24% on the right path

33% unprepared for the future

24% overly worried

Correctly understanding whether you will be able to maintain your standard of living in retirement is an important step toward achieving financial wellness.

Planning for Retirement: From Awareness to Wellness

Source: PRUDENTIAL’S AWARENESS TO WELLNESS

The Prudential Insurance Company of America, Newark, NJ and its affiliates. 0303518-00002-00